Q1R4: Linguistics with Spanish

Stage 1 going into Stage 2

1. Do your research

Read through the information on the SELLL website carefully, and make sure to watch our online video which has detailed instructions on how to choose your modules, and navigate this brochure.

2. Sign up Online: Wednesday 1st May, from 9am

- Have the rules for your programme, from this brochure, with you when you log onto S3P: <https://s3p.ncl.ac.uk/login/index.aspx>
- Compulsory modules will already be selected and optional modules will be listed for you to choose.
- The portal will close on 8th May at 8:00pm.
- Further guidance and screenshots are available here: <https://www.ncl.ac.uk/student-progress/registration/s3p/modules/>

FAQs

How do I take an outside module?

Modules not listed on your degree regulations will not appear in this brochure, and will not be available to you in S3P. Instead you will need to select 'HSS dummy module(s)'. Then you will need to fill in a module change form at the beginning of Semester 1 to change from the dummy module to your chosen outside module.

How long will module selection take?

A few minutes.

What if I suffer technical problems?

Please don't panic. You can call IT on 0191 208 5559 to log the issue. Alternatively, you can email elll@ncl.ac.uk and we will try to assist you.

Will I get my first choice of modules?

Not necessarily. We recommend that you login and submit your choices as soon as possible. We'd also recommend having back-up modules in mind, in case your first choices are full. This is why it's important to read the module descriptions and make your decisions before the portal opens.

I need further advice and guidance. Who should I ask?

If your question is in regard to a specific module, please contact the module leader listed in the module descriptions, via email. If the module leader is to be confirmed (TBC), the head of subject is listed and will also be able to answer your questions. If you don't understand your programme regulations please contact your Degree Programme Director (DPD): Daniel.Duncan@newcastle.ac.uk. If, after reading the module descriptions, you're struggling to decide which modules to take you can contact your personal tutor via email.

I had arranged to have a semester abroad next year. What should I do?

If you haven't done so already, please contact Ella Mershon (ella.mershon@newcastle.ac.uk) to discuss your options.

What if I change my mind or make a mistake?

If your choices do not comply with your regulations, they will be rejected and we will contact you to choose all your modules again – if you do not respond by the given deadline, modules will be chosen for you. If you change your mind you will be given the opportunity to change your modules at a later date. Further information will be released closer to the time.

* With DPD permission, a candidate may defer either SEL2000 or SEL2089, in order to increase the range of Optional Language / Linguistics modules available to them. For e.g. where one Stage 2 semester 2 module has another a Stage 2 semester 1 module as a pre-requisite. The candidate will be required to take the deferred module at Stage 4.

**Students may replace one of the Optional Language/Linguistics modules with a Stage 2 module with an SPA or LAS code offered in the School of Modern Languages. Students will need to complete a module change form at the beginning of Semester 1 in October 2024 to change your HSS code into your chosen SML module.

SEL2000: Phonological Theory

Module Leader: Dr Rory Turnbull

Semester 1, 20 credits

Pre-requisites: Students must have completed SEL1027 or have the permission of the module leader to enrol on this module. Erasmus students and transfers in from other universities must have an appropriate background, i.e. an understanding of basic phonetics.

A course in intermediate phonology, this module builds on the foundations laid in SEL1027, introducing theoretical models of phonology. The aim is for students to investigate a number of phonological models, including both derivational and optimality theoretic, in order for them to come to an understanding of how evidence and argumentation are used in phonological theory building.

SEL2089: Syntactic Theory

Module Leader: Dr Geoffrey Poole

Semester 1, 20 credits

Pre-requisites: Students must have completed SEL1027, or have the permission of the module leader to enrol on this module.

Following on from SEL1027, this module provides a more comprehensive and deeper understanding of the syntax of natural language with modern English as the main object of study. It is a required course for students on Linguistics degrees, but is open to any student who has taken SEL1027. Topics to be addressed include phrase structure (X'-Theory), argument structure (theta-roles), Case, agreement, noun phrase structure, binding, various kinds of movement, ellipsis, locality, Logical Form, architecture of grammar, syntactic variation. Not necessarily all of these are covered every year.

SPA2061 – Level C (HE Advanced) Spanish

Module Leader: Mrs Marcela Reyes Otaiza

Semesters 1 & 2, 20 credits total

Pre-requisite: Students must have successfully completed SPA1071 or equivalent to enrol on this module.

This module will:

1. focus on further developing students' written communicative and oral/ aural competence in the foreign language gained in Level B (including fluency, grammatical and lexical accuracy and range; register and pronunciation);
2. prepare students for the future study of the language (written communicative and oral / aural skills);
3. facilitate students' ability to establish and maintain effective social and working relations with speakers of the foreign language in written and spoken media during their intercalary year. This includes students' ability to use and understand authentic material and produce their own written and spoken output.

SEL2091: Sociolinguistics

Module Leader: Dr Daniel Duncan

Semester 1, 20 credits

No pre-requisites

This module builds on the knowledge of language variation & change and data analysis skills obtained in SEL1032 in order to develop a fuller understanding of sociolinguistics. It introduces this domain of linguistics from two perspectives:

- Microsociolinguistics, the study of language variation and change at the level of individuals, groups, and communities. With particular emphasis on the framework of variationist sociolinguistics, the module explores how linguistic variation is influenced by societal factors like social class and ethnicity.
- Macrosociolinguistics, the study of language at the societal level. With particular emphasis on the sociology of language, the module explores how society shapes broader linguistic outcomes like language maintenance or shift, language endangerment, and the development of pidgins and creoles.

This module refines data analysis skills by further developing quantitative reasoning skills. It adds basic inferential statistics to the analytical toolkit and explores how these are used to refine and test linguistic hypotheses.

SEL2212: Early English: Texts, Patterns and Varieties

Module Leader: Dr William Van der Wurff

Semester 2, 20 credits

Pre-requisites: Students must have completed SEL1032, or have the permission of the module leader to enrol on this module. For incoming exchange students: basic introductory course(s) in linguistics.

Module aims:

- To develop students' competence in reading texts from a variety of periods in the history of English;
- To develop students' ability to analyse linguistic features of texts;
- To build on the knowledge and skills relating to language change gained in SEL1032 (Language Variation and Change);
- To enhance students' knowledge of the processes by which the English language has evolved into its present-day state;
- To develop competence in using dictionaries, historical corpora and other electronic resources.

SEL2219: Monsters, Misery & Miracles: Heroic Life in Old English Poetry

Module Leader: Dr Adam Mearns

Semester 1, 20 credits

No pre-requisites

This module introduces you to the poetry of the early middle ages in the original Old English, thereby giving you the opportunity to study the very beginnings of literature in the English language.

Old English poetry covers a wide range of genres, including wisdom literature, religious verse, heroic and elegiac poetry, and innuendo-laden riddles. From this range of material, we will explore literature that negotiates between the Germanic, heroic, Christian, and quotidian cultures that pervaded the age and were especially relevant to the North of England. As such, this module is uniquely placed to address topics of race, gender, and othering, which have a deep and sometimes troubling association with an English past.

We will focus on three main poetic texts in their original language. We will start by examining the earliest dream poem in English, instrumental in establishing the conventions for describing religious experience, The Dream of the Rood. This will be followed by a deeply moving poem about loss and loneliness, The Wanderer. Finally, we will examine one of the greatest poems about heroes, monsters, and warfare, Beowulf.

You will 'slow read' these texts by creating your own translations of the original Old English. Through this process, you will gain an understanding of the key features of the language and its poetics and, in doing so, you will have the opportunity to examine and reflect on your own poetic impulses. You will also situate these texts in their literary contexts by reading a wider range of other Old English poetry in translation, as well as reflect on the place of Old English literature today.

SEL2229: Experimental Methods in Linguistics

Module Leader: Dr Christine Cuskley

Semester 2, 20 credits

Pre-requisites: Students must have completed SEL1027 and SEL1032, or have the permission of the module leader to enrol on this module.

This course provides a broad overview of the foundational issues with respect to experimental methodology in linguistics. Lectures will cover theoretical and philosophical considerations, methodological approaches and issues, and tools used in data collection. By the end of the course, students will be able to critically evaluate experimental research in linguistics, from both theoretical and methodological points of view. Alongside this, students will learn the basic skills necessary for carrying out their own experimental research project, including experimental design, data wrangling, and statistical analysis.

SEL2230: Multilingualism

Module Leader: Dr Rebecca Woods

Semester 2, 20 credits

Pre-requisites: Students must have taken SEL2235 in semester 1 to enrol on this module.

This module focuses on the acquisition and use of two or more languages throughout the lifespan of an individual. It considers how two or more languages are represented in one mind, how languages interact in use, as well as building on and extending students' knowledge of child language acquisition and language change. It also considers issues around the role of languages in shaping identity and society.

SEL2234: Pragmatic Theory

Module Leader: Dr Gabriel Martinez Vera

Semester 1, 20 credits

Pre-requisites: SEL1027 & SEL1028.

This module concentrates on the study of meaning at the level of pragmatics, i.e., on how we create meaning from the linguistic expressions that we utter in context (e.g., in exchanges). It introduces foundational notions in pragmatics and provides tools to analyse phenomena in the field. It further discusses pragmatics and its relation to other domains of grammar and introduces different research methods to collect and annotate data.

SEL2235: CHiLD Current Hypotheses in Language Development

Module Leader: Dr Emma Nguyen & Dr Rebecca Woods

Semester 1, 20 credits

Pre-requisites: SEL1027

Language is an incredibly complex system of knowledge. Not only are there multiple levels of representation - sounds and words and phrases and whole utterances and meanings - but within a given level, even simple forms can be derived from multiple interacting pieces of knowledge. Yet as speakers of any given language, we are often blissfully unaware of how much we need to know in order to be able to communicate with language.

One of the most striking things about language is that all typically-developing children learn their native language flawlessly, especially when compared to adults trying to accomplish the same task. This is true despite adults' superior cognitive skills. Children of the world seem somehow suited for language acquisition in a way that adult humans - and other animals - are not.

In this module, we survey the broad topic of language acquisition, focusing not only on children's developmental trajectory, but also on what knowledge of language is, how language acquisition relates to cognition in general, and acquisition of language by speakers with sensory or cognitive deficits.

SEL2236: It's not what you say, it's how you say it: Prosody and intonation

Module Leader: Dr Niamh Kelly & Dr Rory Turnbull

Semester 2, 20 credits

Pre-requisites: SEL1027

This module provides an overview of the functions of prosody and intonation in English and other spoken languages. Students will develop an understanding of both the abstract theory and practical methods used in investigating this multifaceted aspect of spoken language.

SPA2019: World Spanish

Module Leader: Professor Ian McKenzie

Semester 1, 20 credits

Pre-requisites: SML1019

In accordance with the overall aims of the degrees offered in the SML, this module aims to build on skills gained at Stage 1, to introduce students to the different varieties of Spanish that are spoken in the world.

Students will learn about varieties of Spanish in the Iberian Peninsula and overseas (primarily Latin America). The course looks at Spanish on a region-by-region basis, but students will be expected to adopt a thematic perspective, using the data to address such issues as creolization, social variation, languages in contact, language change, dialect split and dialect classification.

SPA2021: Catalan I

Module Leader: Dr Josep Cru

Semester 1&2, 20 credits

No pre-requisites

In consonance with the overall aims of the degrees offered in the SML, this module aims to build on skills acquired at Stage 1 (languages learning skills and skills of cultural study) and provide students with an introduction to modern Catalan which will take them up to Lower Intermediate (post-GCSE equivalent) level.

This is an introduction to the Catalan language. It aims to give you a basic knowledge of Catalan grammar and vocabulary using written and spoken sources (this includes students' ability to use and understand authentic material and produce their own written and spoken output). You will also learn to communicate orally in Catalan and understand varieties of the spoken language. You will also learn to identify the problems that beset a 'minority' language and its cultures and set these in the context of your knowledge of modern Spain and France.

Component	When Set	%	Comment
Written exam	End (sem 2)	70	Assessing grammar, vocabulary, reading and writing
Oral exam	Mid (sem 2)	30	Consisting of a role-play exercise and conversation in Catalan

SPA2025: Representaciones de Revolución, Dictadura y Democracia en España y América Latina

Module Leader: Dr Patricia Oliart

Semester 1&2, 20 credits

No pre-requisites

In consonance with the overall aim of the degrees offered in the SML, the main aim of this module is to contribute to students' broad-based knowledge of aspects of the history, politics, society and culture in the Iberian Peninsula and Latin America.

The aim of this module is to analyse artefacts of Iberian and Latin American cultural production linked to specific historical contexts, in the light of contemporary critical literature on cultural production, power and society. This module addresses the importance of cultural production from the 20th century to the present day, exploring how agents producing cultural representations (photographers, musicians, writers, poets, journalists, film makers, the media and state institutions) use cultural artefacts to impact on people's relationships with power and society. The module is taught in Spanish and assessed in Spanish and English. An oral presentation in Spanish is set in semester 1 and one 2750-word essay in English is in place for semester 2. Analysis of the material, lectures, and class interactions during students' presentations in Spanish provide useful preparation for the Year Abroad at Stage 3. Through a variety of study skills tasks, this module prepares students for more specialist study in Iberian and Latin American cultural and/or historical studies at Stage 4.

Component	When Set	%	Comment
Oral presentation	Mid (sem 1)	30	15-minute oral presentation in Spanish
Essay	End (sem 2)	70	2500-word essay in English

SPA2027: Food, Football and Fiction: Constructing Catalan Cultural Identity

Module Leader: Dr Jennifer Arnold

Semester 1&2, 20 credits

No pre-requisites

Drawing on key debates and approaches from within Catalan studies, the module will explore how Catalan culture in its many fields is used to express, construct and promote a Catalan identity both within Spain and beyond. Lectures will provide a historical overview of Catalan language and history, with a particular focus on how both the language and culture has been repressed. They will introduce students to the ways in which culture has been used, and continues to be used, as a means of resistance both at an artistic and institutional level. Students will also be introduced to a range of cultural movements (eg renaixença, modernism) as well as key figures from Catalan culture and look at their cultural, social and historical significance within Catalan society. Seminars will provide students with the opportunity to analyse and interrogate a range of primary sources a range of cultural fields from key moments in Catalan contemporary history.

Component	When Set	%	Comment
Essay	End (sem 2)	80	A 3000-word essay to be submitted after Easter

Oral presentation	Mid (sem 1)	Formative	Students will be given the opportunity to do a presentation on a topic that relates to the essay topics

LAS2030: Comparative History of Hispano-America and Brazil: from Independence to the Mexican Revolution (1789/1810-1917)

Module Leader: Professor Jens R Hentschke

Semester 1, 20 credits

No pre-requisites

The main purpose of this course is to give students an idea of the similarities and divergences in the historical development of Latin American countries during the key period from Independence to the Mexican Revolution. In contrast to Western Europe and North America, in Latin America 'Independencia' state-building preceded nation-building. Iberian mercantilism gave way to an economic re-colonisation by Great Britain, while France remained the major cultural reference point during the 'long 19th century'. Yet, 'Amérique Latine' was an artificial construct, suggesting that the more than two dozen Latin American countries formed a kind of homogenous bloc.

The course will make you aware that, from their Conquest, Spanish and Portuguese America, let alone French Saint-Domingue (an important excursus), had been separated by more than language and natural barriers, and you will understand why Liberator Simón Bolívar failed in maintaining at least the territorial integrity of the four Spanish viceroyalties. We will look at the 'caudillo' dictatorships which followed political emancipation and contrast them to Brazil's ambivalent attempts to forge a nation post facto; analyse the liberal reforms of the mid-19th century in Colombia, Mexico and Argentina; compare Cuba's anti-slavery and belated pro-Independence movements with Brazil's abolitionists and republicans; and learn about Uruguay's transformation into Latin America's first welfare state democracy and Mexico's paradigmatic 1910-17 revolution.

Component	When Set	%	Comment
Written exam	Mid	30	Consists of a limited number of factual questions on entire course and an extract from a primary source
Written exam	End	70	Students have to answer one of seven questions
